4. Additional charging information

Additional usage charging on mobile data

Not applicable. Access speed will be throttled.

Upgrade & Downgrade Fees

There are no upgrade charges. As any downgrade will be effectively a cancellation of the mobile service, the early termination charge will constitute the "downgrade" fee.

A downgrade is defined when a customer changes from one bundle to another, not when they cancel the bundle but retain some service elements from it, for example a fixed telephony line and a SMART Number. See section on termination charges for detail related to that situation.

5. Fixed broadband additional usage charges

£0.85 ex VAT (£1.02 Inc. VAT) for every GB or part thereof.

6. Service termination & charging

Office Bundle

Where a customer serves notice within the initial contract period to cease their bundle and does not retain any element of that bundle, appropriate early termination charges based on the remaining duration of their contract will apply. These will be calculated as the line rental charges related to the remaining duration of the contract – for instance, 6 months remaining = $6 \times £45 = £270$.

Where a customer cancels their bundle contract but retains a fixed line, early termination charges should be calculated as $£24.99 \times N$, where N = the number of months remaining in the bundle contract.

All other associated services will also be cancelled in line with the date of the request unless a separate and new agreement is signed by the customer for the services they wish to retain. There will be no additional termination charges raised for these. Where a customer up or downgrades their broadband service to a different package, no early termination charges for that element will apply.

Mobile Bundles

Where a customer has the Mobile Office or Mobile Office Blackberry bundle, unless a separate and new agreement is signed by the customer for any of:

- Their mobile service
- Their mobile broadband service
- Their domain

These will also be ceased in line with the date requested. Any early termination charges attributable specifically to these services will be covered within the overall sum raised and will not be treated separately, with the exception of the element related to mobile. In all cases this will be $£30 \times N$, where N = the months remaining in the contract. For example, 11 months remaining = $£330$.

Prices for these services when ordered individually will be as displayed at the time in the Business section of the KCOM Price Manual.

If a customer wishes to cease any mobile element of their bundle, they should either A) Downgrade to the next appropriate package and pay the appropriate charge or B) Cease all the services in their bundle in full and sign separate new contracts for the services they wish to retain, paying any appropriate termination charges those cancelled.

It should be noted in the case of a complete cease of all services that the calculation for a mobile bundle will therefore be N (where N = number of months remaining on the contract) \times $£45$ for fixed element PLUS \times $£30$ for mobile element. Therefore, if customer has 8 months left on contract, sum of early termination charges would be $8 \times £75 = £600$

7. Mobile Broadband

The minimum contract period for any mobile broadband product associated with a bundle is 24-months. This applies from whenever the service start date is. For the avoidance of doubt, it is not associated with the contract start or end date of the bundle. Termination charges should be calculated as $N \times £15.00$, where N is the remaining number of months under the 24-month term.

Where a customer is requesting to upgrade their handset and migrate between packages, the retail value of the unit they have already purchased will be charged as a one-off sum. In this example, should a customer wish to migrate from the Mobile Office bundle to the iPhone office bundle, the full retail value of the handset associated with the Mobile Office package will be invoiced to the customer as an ad-hoc charge.

8. All Bundles

Where the customer ceases their bundle, but retains any of the services which are part of their original bundle, they will commence a new 12-month contract for that service.

Where a bundle is outside of the initial contract period and is being fully ceased, a thirty day notice requirement will apply, after which no additional charges will be raised.

Where a customer has moved from an existing contract with a longer duration (i.e. from a product/service with a two year minimum period) the bundle contract period will apply for termination charge calculation purposes.
